Storm Damage Checklist

What to check, photograph and do after hail, high wind or a falling tree.

1. Safety first

- ☐ Stay off the roof. Look from the ground or a window.
- ☐ Keep away from downed power lines and wet electrical outlets; call the utility.
- ☐ If a tree is on the house or water is pouring in, call for emergency help and board-up / tarp service.

2. Photograph everything — before anything is moved or cleaned up

- ☐ Wide shots of each side of the house, then close-ups.
- ☐ Roof from the ground: missing, lifted or creased shingles; debris.
- ☐ Gutters, downspouts, vents and window wraps: dents show how big the hail was.
- ☐ Siding, window screens, fences, the A/C unit, cars.
- ☐ Inside: ceiling stains, drips, wet insulation in the attic. Note the date and time.

3. Stop more damage

- ☐ Put buckets and towels under drips; move valuables away.
- ☐ Get a tarp on the roof if water is coming in (a contractor should do it — do not climb up).
- ☐ Keep receipts for emergency repairs, tarps and hotel stays.

4. Get a professional inspection

- ☐ Ask for a written report with photos — free from GrayCo.
- ☐ Damage to shingles is often invisible from the ground.

5. Call your insurance company

- ☐ Report promptly — most policies have deadlines for reporting damage.
- ☐ Write down the claim number, the adjuster's name and contact information.
- ☐ Ask whether your policy pays replacement cost and how depreciation is released.

- [ ] Be there for the adjuster's visit — your contractor can meet them too.

> Red flags: anyone who pressures you to sign on the spot, has no license or insurance, asks for full payment up front, or offers to "cover your deductible" (that can be insurance fraud).

General guidance only — every home, policy and situation is different. Your insurance company decides what is covered; read your policy and ask your agent.
